G. DIVISION of the Northwest Mounted Police held their first dance of the season in Bremner's hall, Fort Saskatchewan, on Tuesday evening last. It was attended by about seventy-five people. The hall was prettily decorated with flags and lanterns and a programme of thirty numbers and twelve extras was gone through with. Dancing commenced at 9:30 and continued until 4 a. m., supper being served at midnight. Music was furnished by F. Andrews on the piano, Mr. Cook, violin, a second violin and flute player. The affair was in every respect a success and augurs well for the series which it is proposed to give this winter.

THE Victoria, Kansas delegates who came in last week, with Mr. Brungardt, to look at the country, left for Wetaskiwin on Tuesday's train intending to look at the Battle river country before returning to the United States. Whilst here, they visited the St. Albert district and north of there, also Stony Plain and other points. Mr. Brungardt was the pioneer of this party and came here in September. So pleased was he that he at once induced several others to come up and report on the favorable country he had seen. He says that over 100 families will come next year as a result of what this delegation have seen and learned.

THE Canadian Magazine for October is full of interesting reading, The number is also well illustrated. "Reminiscences of Francis Parkman at Quebec," by J. M. Le Moine, President of the Royal Society of Canada, will be read with much interest; as will also the charming paper by Attorney General Longley on "Joseph Howe," the first of a series of articles on this famous statesman by the same able pen. Hon. James Young gives a most suggestive illustrated contribution on "Canadian homes and their surroundings." Hugh Sutherland, ex-M. P., writes, on "Nature's outlet for the Northwest," and A. H. D. Ross, on a "Canoe trip to Lake Mistassini and James Bay." The Canadian Magazine is published by the Ontario Publishing Co., Ltd., Toronto, $2,50 per annum.

W. A. FRASER went east on last train upon matters in connection with the oil boring experiment at Athabasca Landing. Enough piping was brought to go down 1000 feet. This was used to pipe off the flow of natural gas. Now they have struck a sort of quicksand that requires more piping to go through. Mr. Fraser is bent on making the expedition a success this fall if possible and will return with the extra piping.

CHAS. CLARKE, Jas. Kenely, Wm. Whiteside, Golfine Lafine, Mr. Taylor and others, returned on Monday from Saddle creek where they have been gold mining. For a great part of the summer the water has been too high to allow them to mine successfully, except those who had good diggings in the river bank. Latterly they have made $3 50 to $4 50 a day and most of them had gold amalgam worth from $80 to $150 each.

THE secretary of the Edmonton agricultural society has received a letter from the lieutenant governor's office suggesting the advisability of the society making early arrangements for securing the best exhibits of the district for the year 1894, for entry at the Territorial exhibition which it is proposed to hold at Regina, probably in the latter part of August 1895. As the success of the exhibition may prove of pecuniary benefit to each agricultural society throughout the Territories, His Honor is desirous of having the views of the various societies throughout the district relative thereto.

Godfrey Lafond and Charles Shaw, who have been mining on the sand bars near the confluence of the Vermillion river with the Saskstchewan, returned to town on Tuesday. Mr. Lafond made $80 in the last 24 days and worked about eight hours a day for it. With the water as low as it has been for the past week, he says it is an easy matter to make $3 per day of six hours, it being impossible to work much after three in the afternoon and earlier than nine in the morning on account of a slight coating of ice freezing on the blanket. He estimates that there are about 200 miners between Fort Saskatchewan and St Paul mission.

AN exciting foot race of 250 yards was run at Calgary last Tuesday, when Moosewa, the Indian runner of Lac St. Ann, beat John Allen the well known Canadian sprinter, by a full yard. In the race of 440 yards at Edmonton this last summer Allan was an easy winner; but for sometime previously the Indian had been unwell and at the time of the race he was anxious to get out of running it. His trip to Calgary last week was for the purpose of running against Williamson the Regina man, who was at Calgary during the fall sporting tournament, and who it was said was anxious to race with the Indian. Williamson not being there this race with Allan was arranged with the result above stated. It was an even start and an even race throughout.

SHARP frost last night and thin ice running in the river this morning.

THERE will be service in All Saints church this evening at 8 o'clock.

TO-DAY, November 1st, is All Saints day. Special services were held in St. Joachim's church this morning.

THE new bell at St. Joaceim's mission has been hung in place and was rung last night for the first time. The sound is most musical.

A MEETING for the selection of candidates and office bearers in the mock parliament will be held in the council chamber on Thursday evening next.

J. G. FAIRBANKS, of Larue & Picard's store, has been appointed agent for Brown Bros. nurseries, of fruit, and ornamental trees and flowering plants.

THE teachers' convention which was announced for November 9th, has been postponed until the 16th, owing to the impossibility of inspector Calder visiting Edmonton before that date.

THE arch of evergreens erected across Jasper avenue at the junction of Queen street, in honor of the visit of Lord and Lady Aberdeen, was taken down yesterday by the contractor Jas. McDonald.

MESSRS N. G. Flater and Frank Osborne returned on Monday from their trip to Cooking lake where they located a site on the south side of Koney Island for a club house, cutting away the timber and brush and laying out the foundation.

THE Edmonton Creamery Co. closed operations for the season on October 1st having made about 8,000 pounds of butter. None of the butter has been exported. It is being held for the local trade. The milk of about 200 cows was worked up. Owing to the smallness of the number the season's operations will show some loss, but the company intends to run the creamery next summer and expects to have the milk from a much larger number of cows.

FRANK OLIVER, Proprietor.

VOL. XVII.

With this issue the BULLETIN enters upon its seventeenth volume. This is a fairly long life for a newspaper in a new country. The BULLETIN is the oldest newspaper but one in the Territories and is all the more vigorous by reason of its age. It has steadily kept pace with the growth of the town and district in and for which it is published, and is now in a better position to give the Edmonton public the worth of their money in news and printing than ever before. With a first-class plant, a commodious office and an established business, it is in a position to keep up with the rapid development of this part of the Dominion and to represent it to the outside public in a suitable and creditable light. Through the hearty support and appreciation of the people of the district who patronize it as subscribers or advertisers, it has been enabled to reach this position. In the past the BULLETIN has been noted for fair dealing and plain speaking. Its effort has been to serve the public interest without regard to clique or party, and only to aid those private interests which are to the general welfare. It has been conducted on these lines from the start and the fact that it has held the good opinion of the public, and has kept its place as a newspaper of standing and influence during the vast and rapid change of conditions which has taken place here within the past three years, is sufficient proof that these are the right lines and the best lines to take and therefore they will be adhered to. The first and chief aim of the BULLETIN is to be a newspaper. Only a local newspaper it is true, but still a newspaper in the most complete sense of the word. A paper that will collect and publish the news of the locality as thoroughly and carefully as the metropoliton newspaper will the news of the great city and its surroundings. That will take up the questions that most nearly concern the locality and discuss them from the standpoint of the public interest with the same independence if not with the same ability as the leading papers of the world do the mighty questions which properly come before them. If the local paper attends properly to its functions of gathering local news—of mirroring in each issue the commercial and social life of the district for the preceding days—and of taking up and discussing freely the various matters which affect the district and upon which its citizens must act, it is as valuable and is serving as useful a purpose within its sphere as the city paper within its larger sphere, and is therefore as well worthy the financial support necessary to its success. In dealing with its patrons the BULLETIN has never held out the inducement of a cheap paper, if subscription or advertising rates are to be the standard of cheapness. It has asked a fair price for its subscriptions and a fair rental for its advertising space. The expenses incidental to the publication of a good paper have to be met, and in the case of an independent paper they can only be met out of the receipts from these sources, assisted by such commercial printing as can be secured. Unless the receipts cover the expenditures the paper must suspend publication, and unless there is an adequate expenditure there cannot be a good paper. The difference in value to the district between a good local paper and an outside paper is greater than any possible difference in the trifling yearly subscription rates that are charged, while the difference in advertising value and rates is still greater. The local paper is the best and cheapest, almost the only, medium whereby the people of the locality can be reached, and its advertising rates are small compared with those of the city paper. To get the news promptly before the public requires not only energy and expenditure in gathering the news but it also requires expensive mechanical appliances. The publication of the BULLETIN as a semi-weekly made necessary the purchase of a steam press and engine and these again made necessary the erection of new premises. These expenditures have been incurred in the full confidence that the Edmonton district needed and the Edmonton people were willing to support a good local paper, such as it has been and will continue to be the constant effort of the publisher of this paper to supply.

GENERAL NEWS.

Work has commenced on the new brewery at Prince Albert.

MacLeod wants to be made a regular station in the meteorological service.

Ottawa, Oct. 26.—The Manitoba and Northwest delegates are still here, but they have come to no arrangement with the government regarding the building of the Hudson's Bay railway.

Montreal, Oct. 26.—Lord Aberdeen and his family will reside in Montreal this winter for a certainty. He will occupy the residence of the late Premier, Sir John Abbott, on Sherbrooke street, and will move in on November 15th. The house is now being prepared for the reception.

Do you eat prairie chicken? If so, examine the next one that you prepare for the pot or oven. The birds this year are troubled with a sort of tape worm, some of which have been found over a foot in length. In same instances the worm has been found lying close along the back bone of the chicken, in which condition the bird is said not to be fit for food. A careful examination is indispensible. In disposing of the entrails of birds so affected, they should be put where no fowl or pigs may get them.

A report that Moore & Macdowall, the extensive lumber manufacturers of this town were not likely to send any men to the woods this winter having been circulated, the Advocate enquired of Mr. Macdowall as to the reliability of the rumor. Mr. Macdowall stated that among other causes the prevailing depression and high freight rates had interfered seriously with the profitable sale of lumber in the markets where Prince Albert's lumber had formerely been sold and that for the present the firm did not think it would be in their interests to prosecute the usual work in the woods.—Prince Albert Advocate.

At St. Boniface, Man., on Wednesday of last week, sisters Marion and Laurier of the order of Grey Nuns died. It was in 1891, and side by side they both crossed the threshold of the cloister; together they pronounced their vows; together, more or less in the five years of their earthly labors, did they toil; together they entered the infirmary, suffering from the same dread disease—consumption; together they slept side by side during their illness; almost together they died—for but a few hours intervened between their deaths; together their remains were exposed in the same chamber; the one funeral service sufficed for them both; and in the one grave do their bodies now repose—a strange, yes truly strange, chapter of events. This is a case where facts become fiction-like.

Geologists have held that the gold belt of the Pacific slope extends without a break from Mexico to Alaska, following the Rocky mountains and parallel ranges, and miners have found the theory of the geologists correct. Wherever a slaty-rock country, with quartz intermixed, has been found, there the miner expects to come upon gold in paying quantities. This gold belt has been traced and explored for almost its entire length, and nearly always with good results. About 17 years ago Ed. Cannell of Kamloops travelled from the Big bend to the Horsefly country. On the way this slate rock, which so often betokens the presence of gold, was seen; but provisions were short, and, much as they would have liked to, they could not stay and prospect. Two months ago he again started out with two prospectors; but so much time was lost in cutting out forty miles of trails, their clothes were torn to shreds and their horses had to be left far behind in the flats, that last week they returned empty handed. Another trip will be made next summer as he thinks the gold country betwen the Clearwater and the Horsefly is rich.

Mr. S. R. Reid, a newspaper man who is travelling through British Columbia, collecting incidents, historical and otherwise, tells this story, told by an old Shuswap Indian now hunting near Soda creek:—A long time ago a party of Shuswap left their lodges near where Kamloops now stands, and journeyed eastward to the heart of the Rockies, on a hunting expedition. While in camp one night two Shuswap maidens were stolen by strange Indians. The Shuswaps when they found their girls were stolen returned to their homes in haste. A great meeting of all the chiefs was held and and war was at once declared against the kidnapping strangers. They did not know what tribe to blame, but knew they came from the east of the Rockies. All the able bodied men, including the Indians of Soda Lake and Big Bar accompanied by seven chiefs, started for war. For three weeks they travelled without any sign of an enemy and a few of the warriors wanted to turn back. But the stronger minds prevailed. The next day a deer was seen passing. The animal had been shot with an arrow which was still hanging to its side. And it was noticed that the arrow was a wood not peculiar to that country, so they concluded that the enemy was not far away. In the evening they went into camp without a fire. One of the men climbed to the top of a tree looked around and saw a smoke not far distant. So they waited until midnight and went directly towards the smoke. They found it to be a camp of strange Indians with a big fire buring in the centre. The strangers were sleeping. The Shuswaps secreted their forces all around the camp with the exception of two chiefs who stole stealthily to the centre of the camp. One of the chiefs called loudly in Shuswap and the stolen girls aroused from their slumbers by the voice in Shuswap rushed to their rescuers before the camp was fairly roused. The Shuswap warriors closed in on the camp and the strangers completely taken by surprise were easy victims. All the men, women and children of the camp were butchered. They carried the dead bodies and piled them on the fire. Then they heaped all their camping effects and a fresh supply of brush on top and returned home with the rescued girls.

LOCAL.

Seventy-eight settlers left Calgary on Monday, train, sixty-one of whom were from the United States. The balance were from Ontario and Manitoba.

C. Gallagher has began packing pork for the season, and has already purchased several thousand pounds. He has decided to purchase only live hogs to be slaughtered by himself. The price paid is about 4c live weight.

Farmers market prices: Oats 20c to 24c; barley 20c to 30c; wheat 40c to 50c; eggs 25c a dozen and scarce; butter 25c a pound and in good supply; beef 2½c a pound live weight; pork 4c live weight; potatoes 20c a bushel; onions $1.50 a bushel; hay $4 to $5 a ton. Deliveries of grain are increasing daily.

A careful calculation has been made of the amount of bacon, ham, and other hog products imported to Edmonton during the year ending October 1st. The amount is about 150,000 pounds, worth something like $20,000. This in a country which excels all others in the production of coarse grains and vegetables. And yet people wonder why prices are low and where all the money goes to.
